Read the following text.

HUSKIES: The Inuit's best friend

For you and me, dogs are pets, but for the Inuit, dogs are essential to their way of life. The Inuit are the native people of the Arctic. They live in Alaska, Canada, Greenland and Siberia. They live in very cold climates. The Inuit use husky dogs because they are strong and work hard. Huskies can also survive in very cold conditions.

The Inuit tribe in Alaska live in a traditional way. They depend on animal for food, transport and clothes. In the Arctic, there aren't many vegetables, fruit or cereals, so the Inuit's basic diet is meat and fish.

The Inuit hunt seals, polar bears and reindeer, and their dogs help them. They make sledges with animal bones and skin. The dogs can go fast and pull heavy sledges over long distances.

Huskies also help to protect the Inuit. They love their dogs and can't live without them!
